The USAG Stuttgart command team wishes all a safe and happy holiday season 2016

Col. Glenn K. Dickenson
Commander
U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart

The holiday season is a perfect opportunity to spend time with family and friends. It's a festive time to celebrate, especially in a great place like Stuttgart.

As we begin this special time of the year, Command Sgt. Maj. Mariano Z. Alvarez and I want to extend our appreciation to all of the service members and civilian employees for your hard work and personal commitment to your commands, jobs and the U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart community. Together, you make this a great place to live.

Some of you will travel and some of you will remain in the local area between now and New Year's Day. While it's a time of joy and renewed contact with friends and family, just a moment of inattention or an unsafe act can turn a holiday into a tragedy. Regardless of what your plans are, we encourage you to put emphasis on having a safe holiday.

Drinking and driving is a serious problem with even more serious consequences. If you plan to drink, also plan on a designated driver. Plan to get plenty of rest, too, as driving while fatigued impairs your reactions to whatever the roads may bring. Get your vehicle a safety inspection before you begin your journey, make sure you have the right tires and you've winterized your ride, and of course, wear your seatbelts. There are other safety issues you may not have considered beyond driving, like food preparation and storage to avoid illness or injury, recreation activities in the cold weather, and fire safety — there's a video posted on the garrison's Facebook page demonstrating how fast a holiday tree inside a home can go up in flames. Instead of burning candles, use the battery kind to illuminate your decorations.

It's easy to be safe and have a great time. We want all of you to come back to work after a relaxing holiday season, refreshed and ready for the challenges of 2017.

Happy Holidays!

Safety tips offered for winter driving

Public Affairs Office
U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart

Although Stuttgart has seen only a dusting of snow this season, temperatures have been below freezing and the road conditions have been icy, and that's only the tip of the iceberg.

In general, Germans typically follow the "von O bis O" rule, meaning they put their "matsch und schnee" (mud and snow) or "snowflake" tires on in October and keep them on until Ostern (Easter). In the meantime, if you haven't already done so, get those cold weather tires on your vehicle.

To avoid fines and accidents, make sure your tires are in good condition. Americans are used to using the top of Abraham Lincoln's head on a penny to check for tire tread depth. In Germany, use the golden edge of a two Euro coin to check for at least 1.6 millimeters of tread. Check to make sure the tire pressure is correct. If you're going into an area with heavy snow, chains may be required. Only use chains when directed by the Polizei or road signs, and keep the maximum speed 50 kilometers per hour. Tires with spikes or studs are verboten!

Cold weather affects tire pressure and performance; if you're uncertain, check your owner's manual, talk a mechanic where you bought your car, the Automotive Skills Center or the Exchange's Care Care Center.

Regardless of what you drive, keep the holidays happy by making your ride a safe one.

As winter continues, the Stuttgart Citizen will have more articles that cover current German federal laws and the latest guidance from the garrison and the Department of Defense on winter driving in Europe.

Editor's note: Priscilla Rey, USAG Grafenwoehr, contributed to this article

Holiday safety first

Winter holidays are a time for families and friends to get together. The USAG Stuttgart Installation Safety Office offers the following simple tips to ensure a happy and safe holiday season:

- Winterize your vehicle by maintaining the battery, wipers, fluids, lights, tires and winter car care kit;

- When driving in ice and snow, slow your speed in poor conditions and triple your following distance;
- When renting a vehicle, it is your responsibility to ensure the vehicle has suitable M+S or snow tires. Penalties for not having the correct tires are expensive;
- Remember the "3 P's": Prepare for the trip; Protect yourself and Prevent accidents on the road.

Nativity scene concerns from Europe to US

Robert Szostek
 Customs and Border Clearance Agency
 U.S. European Command

Many European countries have a tradition of making nativity scenes at Christmas time that Americans love to buy. However, the natural products used to make them are sometimes banned from import to the United States because of the agricultural pests and diseases that could be in them.

Shoppers should note that they can be fined $100 or more if they mail scenes that contain moss, bark, wood, pine cones, untreated straw or other restricted materials. However, agriculture officials say people can send nativity scenes that are produced using finished wood, plastic, or commercially cleaned and lacquered straw (except rice straw).

Italy, for example, has a custom of recreating the nativity scene called Presepe. These representations contain miniature clay figures that craftsmen have made for hundreds of years. German nativity scenes are called Weihnachtskrippen and contain carved or ceramic figures.

The figurines themselves pose no agricultural risk and can be sent or taken stateside. However, the figures are often housed in a village setting made of natural bark decorated with peat moss.

“The bark frames or peat moss parts of these nativity scenes can contain damaging insects or quarantine pests,” said Julie Aliaga-Milos, U.S. Department of Agriculture adviser at the European Command’s Customs and Border Clearance Agency. “Therefore they are prohibited from being imported into the United States.”

Stuttgart advises public of increased ‘fine dust alerts’

Public Affairs Office
 U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart

By now, most Stuttgart military community members are familiar with local “fine dust alerts” (Feinstaubalarm).

The first alerts were issued between January and April, and again issued in October. According to the city of Stuttgart, the fine dust season is now set between October and April 2017. On Dec. 24 (Christmas Eve) and Jan. 6, 2017 (Epiphany), the city won’t issue fine dust alerts.

Fine dust alerts are issued by the city when the “Deutscher Wetterdienst,” (German Weather Service) predicts lowered movement of air on two successive days. According to them, it typically takes a week for levels to be reduced.

Currently, city authorities request commuters to travel by public transportation or car-sharing on a voluntary basis, but officials say non-compliance may be subject to fines in the future if air pollution is not reduced.

In the event of a fine dust alert, special fine dust tickets (Feinstaubtickets) for “Verkehrs-und Tarifbund Stuttgart” (VVS) public transportation will be offered, meaning that single fare tickets (valid for one person) are half priced. Commuters can purchase a children’s ticket through the VVS-App, at the various ticket machines or with the bus driver. Day tickets, short distance tickets and group tickets are exempt from the offer.

During the fine dust alerts, drivers can use the electric car sharing “Car2go” in the greater Stuttgart area for €0.19 per minute instead of €0.29.

All S-Bahn and U-Bahn trains will run on an increased schedule during the morning and evening rush hours.

During the fine dust alert, residents are also encouraged not to use wood-burning stoves in their homes.

Stuttgart’s location in the “Kessel,” or valley, leads to higher concentrations of air pollutants. Stuttgart is considered one of the most polluted cities in Germany, and levels of the harmful fine dust have long been well above the 50 micrograms per cubic liter imposed as a limit by the European Union.

Fine dust is harmful to health as air pollution is a major factor in causing respiratory diseases.

THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT YOUR TAX REFUND

- 1 If you file your tax return early and claim the Earned Income Tax Credit or the Additional Child Tax Credit, a new law requires the IRS to hold refunds until mid-February in 2017.
- 2 The law requires the IRS to hold the entire refund - even the portion not associated with the EITC and ACTC - until at least February 15, 2017.
- 3 New identity theft and refund fraud safeguards by the IRS may mean some tax returns and refunds face additional review.

IRS says new law means early tax filers may not receive refunds until after Feb. 15

Bob Kramer
Defense Media Activity

FORT MEADE, Md. — Some taxpayers plan their holiday shopping and other purchases on the assumption they will get their tax refund from the Internal Revenue Service in January.

In 2017, that may no longer be the case.

The Protecting Americans from Tax Hikes, or PATH Act, signed into law December 2015, requires the IRS to hold tax refunds which include Earned Income Tax Credit and Additional Child

Tax Credit until Feb. 15, 2017.

This law requires the IRS to hold refunds until mid-February in 2017 for people claiming the EITC or the ACTC. Also, new identity theft and refund fraud safeguards by both the IRS and individual states may mean some tax returns and refunds face additional review.

Some refunds delayed in 2017

Beginning in 2017, the IRS must hold the entire refund — even the portion not associated with the earned income credit or additional child credit — until at least Feb. 15. The IRS says this change helps ensure taxpayers get the refund they are owed by giving the agency more time to help detect and prevent fraud.

“This is an important change, as some of these taxpayers are used to getting an early refund,” said IRS Commissioner John Koskinen. “We want people to be aware of the change for their planning purposes during the holidays. We don’t want anyone caught by surprise if they get their refund a few weeks later than in previous years.”

As in past years, the IRS will begin accepting and processing tax returns once the filing season begins. All taxpayers should file as usual, and tax return preparers should submit returns as they normally do. Although the IRS cannot issue refunds for some early filers until at least Feb. 15, the IRS reminds taxpayers most refunds will be issued within the normal timeframe: less than 21 days, after being accepted for processing by the IRS. The Where’s My Refund? tool on IRS.gov and the IRS2Go phone app remains the best way to get the status of a refund.

DISA, DPW ‘power up’ for systems test

Directorate of Public Works
U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart

The Defense Information System Agency (DISA) Europe recently conducted an operational function check of its building’s power system response to a complete utility power failure.

In coordination with the U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart Directorate of Public Works, the primary commercial power was turned off to simulate a real world, catastrophic utility power event that might result from a winter storm or downed powerline. Significant planning and coordination included verifying that critical systems in the European Operations Center and the network defense center would survive a long duration outage or a controlled shut-down.

The command’s uninterruptible power supply systems provided emergency battery power until the backup generators could react to the loss of commercial power. Once the backup systems detect the loss of utility power, they automatically start the generator engines and engage an automatic transfer switch within five minutes. A review, and preparation to execute critical continuity of operations should the power systems fail, was also done.

Why such an extreme test? Each component of the system (generators, fuel system, emergency lighting, etc.) is maintained and tested individually. The test is required periodically to verify, in a controlled environment vs. an uncontrolled environment, that all systems properly operate together.

Additionally, routine testing provides familiarization with reaction plans for an actual event. “Mission-critical power validation and testing is essential to ensure auxiliary support systems perform during unscheduled commercial power outages,” said Steve Raymond, director, USAG Stuttgart DPW.

DISA Europe took advantage of the opportunity to work with DPW to service the primary utility transformer, along with preventative maintenance cleaning and termination inspection. The DPW power plant operators hope other critical tenants will follow DISA Europe’s lead and allow such electrical testing and maintenance.

The test concluded successfully. Power systems operated as designed and critical missions continued without interruption.

Find the past by antique hunting

Story and photos by Teresa Lenway Morris
Special to the Stuttgart Citizen

Whether you're searching for a one-of-a-kind gift, a special set of wine glasses or a unique piece of furniture for your home, the many antiquing venues in the Stuttgart area have treasures worth browsing.

At the edge of the Weinachtsmarkt, at Karlsplatz in downtown Stuttgart, there is an enclosed and heated antiques and collectibles tent where 20 local antique dealers display linens, jewelry, ornaments, table settings, toys, home furnishings and more. The tent is open 10 a.m.-9 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 11 a.m.-9:00 p.m. on Sundays, through Dec. 23.

For even more shopping options around the Karlsplatz antique tent on Saturdays, antique dealers and individuals with things to sell set up dozens of tables and booths at Stuttgart's weekly flea market, as they have been doing for the past 25 years.

Just south of Panzer Kaserne in Schönaich, Antiquitätenhaus Krug occupies buildings at that once housed a butcher shop, apartments and a ballroom. It has four floors filled with antique furnishings, artwork, clocks, jewelry, fine china, crystal, Salzglasur pottery, farm and culinary paraphernalia, rare military memorabilia, and so much more.

"It may be the largest antique store in Stuttgart," said owner Petra Dellenger, who owns Antiquitätenhaus Krug with her husband, Patrick

The former Schönaich ballroom, now Antiquitätenhaus Krug, always has "new" antiques to offer.

Dellenger, a U.S. Army Soldier. She operates it with her mother, Rosemarie Krug, who opened the store 45 years ago.

Dellenger, who is fluent in English, notes that sales of used goods like antiques are not subject to VAT in Germany. Instead of purchasers paying VAT, sellers pay a tax based on the difference between the purchase price and the sale price of merchandise. Antiquitätenhaus Krug also restores and refurbishes furniture, including complete refinishing and reupholstering services.

People visit to the store with antiques to sell on an almost daily basis, allowing Dellenger to bring new pieces to the showroom continually. A man once brought her a shoebox containing his parents' German military insignia and medals, including a German cross, and on another occasion Dellenger was invited to buy anything she wanted in a fully furnished Stuttgart villa that a man had purchased only for the land. She bought everything.

"It's like treasure hunting," she said. "And I find the antiques and then my mother sells them."

The former Schönaich ballroom was once connected to the main building by a hallway, and velvet curtains still frame the ballroom's stage where antique furniture and racks of fur coats and clothing now stand.

"Everything in Schönaich happened in that ballroom," Dellenger said, speaking of the time long before the antique store took over the space.

"Weddings, funerals, balls, plays, all happened there. Even the American military community used it – they made it into a Hawaiian bar."

Further afield but worth a visit is Antiquitäten am Markt in Tübingen. The shop opened in 1975. Antiques at this shop tend to be at the higher end in terms of quality and price, and everything is beautifully displayed. Antiquitäten am Markt is open weekdays and Saturdays.

Owner Norbert Scheel's showroom has the feel of a museum in some respects, with still-life arrangements of objects dating back to the 17th century. Adding to its historical charm, part of the shop's nearly 5,400 square-foot showroom occupies a medieval vaulted cellar beneath Tübingen's market square.

Antiques can be found at the weekly Karlsplatz Flohmarkt in Stuttgart.

'Tis the season for the 554th MPs to be jolly

Patch Elementary School students use handmade ornaments to decorate a tree for the 554th Military Police, 709th MP Battalion, 18th MP Brigade.

The halls of the barracks – the MP's home – are decked with red and green paper chains by members of the PES student council.

Bringing the spirit of the season to Soldiers who watch over the U.S. Army Garrison-Stuttgart community, the student council at Patch Elementary School, with a little help from some faculty members, decorated the barracks of the 554th Military Police, here, Dec. 2. The holiday decorations were made by PES students. Additionally, gifts of cookies donated during the Stuttgart Community Spouses Club's "Cookie Caper" were hung on the doorknob. The goal was to bring holiday cheer to the soldiers residing in the 554th MP Barracks.

Support the troops with Commissary gift cards

Defense Commissary Agency
News Release

The military has a longstanding tradition of taking care of its own. During the holidays, installation units and organizations can use the commissary benefit to extend the gift of groceries to service members in need.

The Defense Commissary Agency gift card program allows families at home, friends, DeCA industry partners and charitable organizations to quickly and easily show support (or even introduce the commissary benefit) to a junior service member.

Units or family support agencies purchasing the cards can ensure that every member of their team gets a chance at a home-cooked meal during the holidays.

Here are five great reasons commissary gift cards are so convenient for giver and receiver:

- Card balances can be checked easily by phone and online;
- Anyone can purchase the cards for authorized patrons to use;

- Cards are available in-store worldwide and on our website;
 - There is no limit to the number of cards you can purchase; and
 - Cards can be shipped anywhere in the U.S. and APO, FPO or DPO addresses
- Commissary gift cards, available in denominations of $25 or $50, are a great way to provide the necessities to your loved ones and friends conveniently and quickly.

U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart
Public Affairs

The first 25 Soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 10th Special Forces Group, who went to breakfast, Monday, were pleasantly surprised when United Service Organization center manager Tiffany Emery and Jenni Franklin, USO programs and volunteer coordinator, picked up the tab.

Continuing to pay it forward, the USO is offering a Christmas dinner, tonight, for more than 100 single and unaccompanied service members. Diners will also enjoy games and receive gifts.

Friday is National Ugly Christmas Sweater Day ... seriously, it is an international event. The USO will have photo props and take your picture wearing that unloved holiday sweater.

In addition to a cooking lesson, Saturday (chicken tortilla soup & salad) and is National Crossword Puzzle day.

The USO is offering the U.S. Army Garrison community members one more holiday meal, Dec. 23. Enjoy a home-cooked dinner-to-go of holiday favorites. Pre-register with a deposit to sign up, then pick it up, take it home, heat it when you're ready to eat it and enjoy.

The USO is located on Panzer Kaserne in Bldg. 2915. Its open weekdays, 10 a.m.-6 p.m., and Saturday's 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Watch the announcements pages of the "Stuttgart Citizen" for 2017 events, and stop by for the "best popcorn."

Do you have something to announce?

Contact the USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office for assistance. For all announcements in this issue, please call ahead for any late schedule changes due to the holidays.

SHS CONCERT TONIGHT

The community is cordially invited to attend the Stuttgart High School Music Department's Winter Concert, featuring the string ensemble, advanced chorus and Harmony Express, in the SHS auditorium. Admission is free and seating is ample. The advanced and intermediate bands, as well as the jazz ensemble, played Wednesday evening.

ACS ANGEL TREE

Visit and help out with Angel Tree, sponsored by Army Community Service, by the entrance to the Main Exchange on Panzer Kaserne to help brighten the holidays for less fortunate children. There's a large wrapped box in the customer service department at the Exchange and another in the ACS front lobby to drop off gifts. Please turn in gifts by Dec. 19. Call the ACS Family Advocacy Program Educator at DSN 431-3740 or 0703-115-3740 for more information.

BETTER OPPORTUNITIES FOR SINGLE SERVICE MEMBERS

All BOSS Jam Sessions and movie nights are cancelled for the rest of December and January. BOSS meetings and automotive classes will be held in January.

PANZER TRAFFIC AND EXCHANGE PEDESTRIANS

The Military Police reminds the community that the speed limit in the marked pedestrian zones at the Panzer Exchange is 10 Kilometers – not miles – per hour. That's six miles per hour. Please drive safely; there are many families with small children doing holiday shopping.

PHOTO CONTEST

The Family Morale, Welfare and Recreation Digital Photography Contest is accepting entries until Jan. 31, 2017. Like the FMWR Arts and Crafts contest, this competition is another opportunity to highlight the artistic and creative talents of our service members, family members, retirees and civilian employees. It's also a great way to share resiliency messaging. For more information about the digital photography contest and rules, visit www.armymwr.com/digital-photo.aspx.

Tips offered for purchasing safe toys for kids

Prevent Blindness
New Release

More than a 251,000 toy-related injuries treated in U.S. ERs in 2015

In the United States, emergency rooms treated 251,800 toy-related injuries, according to the report issued last year from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). And, 44 percent of the injuries were to the head and face area, the area of the body with the most injuries. An estimated 84,400 of all toy-related injuries, or 34 percent, happened to children younger than 5 years of age.

In addition, a new study published in Journal of the American Medical Association Ophthalmology, "Epidemiology of Sports-Related Eye Injuries in the United States," found that basketball, baseball, and air guns were the most common causes of injury, accounting for almost half of all primary sports-related eye injuries. An eye care professional can provide recommendations for the best protection for each sport and athlete.

December is Safe Toys and Gifts Awareness month and offers additional tips including:

- Avoid toys that shoot or include parts that fly off.
- Ask yourself or the parent if the toy is right for the child's ability and age. Review the recommended age for that particular toy as this also addresses safety. Consider whether other smaller children may be in the home that may have access to the toy.

- Avoid purchasing toys with sharp or rigid points, spikes, rods, or dangerous edges.
- Buy toys that will withstand impact and not break into dangerous shards.

- Look for the letters "ASTM." This designation means the product meets the national safety standards set by ASTM International.
- Don't give toys with small parts to young children. Young kids tend to put things in their mouths, increasing the risk of choking. If any part of a toy can fit in a toilet paper roll, the toy is not appropriate for children under the age of 3.

- Do not purchase toys with long strings or cords, especially for infants and very young children as these can become wrapped around a child's neck.
- Always dispose of uninflated or broken balloons immediately.
- Magnets, like those found in magnetic building sets and other toys, can be extremely harmful if swallowed. Seek immediate medical attention if you suspect a child may have swallowed a magnet.
- KidsHealth.org recommends that bicycles, scooters, skateboards, and inline skates should never be used without helmets that meet current safety standards and other recommended safety gear, like hand, wrist and shin guards.
- Read all warnings and instructions on the box.
- Always supervise children and demonstrate to them how to use their toys safely.
- Test small toys or parts for safety. Try this with a cardboard toilet paper roll. If items can fit into the roll, they are too small and should be kept away from young children. You can also buy a small-part toy tester at a toy store.

Chart by U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission

Safe trees and decorating for the holidays

Installation Safety Office
U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart

As you deck the halls this holiday season, be safety smart.

Choose a tree with fresh, green needles that do not fall off when touched. Before placing the tree in its stand, cut 2" from the base of the trunk. Add water to the tree stand, and be sure to water it daily.

Make sure the tree is at least three feet away from any heat source, like fireplaces, radiators, candles, heat vents or lights, and don't put the tree where it blocks an exit.

Lighting the tree

Use lights that have the label of a recognized testing laboratory. Some lights are only for indoor or outdoor use. Replace any string of lights with worn or broken cords or loose bulb connections. Connect no more than three strands of mini string sets and a maximum of 50 bulbs for screw-in bulbs. Read manufacturer's instructions for the number of LED strands to connect. Never use lit candles to decorate the tree. A small fire that spreads to a Christmas tree can grow large very quickly.

Always turn off the tree lights before leaving home or going to bed. For the tree and the rest of your home, choose decorations that are flame resistant or flame retardant.

proved multi-plug adapter instead of extension cords for decorations and lights to avoid daisy chaining or overloading of circuits.

Get rid of the tree when it is dry. Dried-out trees are a fire danger and should not be left in the home or garage, or placed outside against the home. Check with your local community to find a recycling program. Bring outdoor electrical lights inside after the holidays to prevent hazards and make them last longer.

Celebrating New Year's Eve in Stuttgart

Megan Brown
USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs

New Year's Eve in Germany is a time to celebrate the start of a new year with fireworks, music, and family. Whether you want to party into the early hours of the morning or have a relaxed New Year's with your family, events in Stuttgart have everything needed to ring in the New Year just like the Germans do.

In Germany, New Year's Eve is called Silvester. During the day, the movie "Dinner for One," will be broadcasted as it has every year since 1963. The 18-minute black-and-white comedy follows the life of Miss Sophie as she celebrates her 90th birthday. Due to her age, however, she has outlived all of her friends and tries to recreate her birthday dinner each year with her only remaining companion – her manservant James.

Also, people may participate in a tradition known as "Bleigiessen," where lead is poured onto a spoon above a candle, and then tipped into a bowl filled with cold water. The lead solidifies and transforms into a random shape. Explanations of the various potential shapes come with the package and provide predictions of what's ahead and coming in the New Year. The utensils for Bleigiessen all come in one package and can be purchased from most local department stores and supermarkets.

Another German New Year's tradition that might be unknown to Americans is "Feuerzangenbowle," a favorite also seen at Christmas markets. Feuerzangenbowle is a hot drink in which a rum-soaked sugar-loaf is set on fire and drips into mulled wine. The name translates to "fire-tong's-punch."

People come from all over the world to take part in the festivities held in downtown Stuttgart. In Germany, this time of year is the only time that fireworks can be purchased. Celebrators light up the sky in every neighborhood at the stroke of midnight, a truly unique experience to witness.

Here are just a few of the activities coming up to ring in 2017:

New Year's Eve Party at the Kelley Club

Sing along to karaoke and dance the night away at the Kelley Club on Kelley Barracks from 8 p.m. – 1 a.m. Enjoy an all-you-can-eat buffet served from 8 – 11 p.m. including bread rolls, assorted fruits, cakes, puddings and yogurts. At the stroke of midnight attendees receive a free glass of champagne to celebrate the start of the 2017 New Year.

Cosmic Bowling New Year's Eve Party on Panzer Kaserne

Enjoy unlimited cosmic bowling, shoe rental, a delicious buffet, party favors and more from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Galaxy Bowling and Entertainment Center on Panzer Kaserne. At midnight, champagne is offered for adults and sparkling grape juice for children.

Also take part in the raffle drawings held every 20 minutes for prizes such as a flat screen television, e-reader, cameras, and more.

Purchase tickets in advance! Tickets are available through Dec. 28 at the Bowling Center and cost $35 per adult, $20 per child.

On Dec. 31, walk-in/general admission tickets for adults and children cost $20, sold only if space is available. Note: Day of general admission tickets are for facility access only. Bowling, food and beverages are sold separately in addition to the general admission tickets.

Silvester with the family at Sensapolis

"Sensapolis" is an indoor play area with amenities such as a ropes course and rock wall located in Sindelfingen. Sensapolis will host a New Year's Eve event for families Dec. 31. Their New Year's Eve party starts at 7 p.m., doors open at 6 p.m. Admission includes champagne, buffets, and programs for kids and adults including fireworks and face painting.

Downtown Stuttgart

For a true party atmosphere, Schlossplatz in downtown Stuttgart is the place to go for crowds, clubs and loads of fireworks, Dec. 31. Visitors can also find wooden huts with chocolate and seasonal beverages available for sale. The outdoor ice-skating rink in Schlossplatz is entirely lit up at midnight too. For a good view of downtown, the tower at the Hauptbahnhof, or Stuttgart's main train station, makes for a great place to watch fireworks.

The view from RB

Areas just outside of Robinson Barracks are an ideal vantage point of the city's fireworks, perched in the wine hills. Grab a spot early and pay close attention to watch out for community members lighting their own fireworks off in the streets nearby.

Remember: Fireworks are available for personal use in Germany once per year to ring in the New Year, however, fireworks are strictly prohibited on all U.S. installations.

As the Germans say: "Prosit Neujahr," or cheers to the New Year!

USAG Stuttgart celebrates the season

Santa was busy this season as the four locations that make up the U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart community each held tree lighting ceremonies.

Three of the ceremonies featured German choirs, and all featured American choirs, dancers, warm cider, hot chocolate and happy children. Some of the ceremonies were attended by local mayors and other officials. The weather held up for all four ceremonies and skies remained clear.

Community banded together for day classics, and the audience hit the button to light the tree just before Santa arrived, via firetruck.

spirits of dozens of children and their parents. The Juinger Kammerchor Boeblingen, 27 teenagers strong, sang for the audience.

On Dec. 2, Kelley Barracks hosted a "behind the scenes" tour of the Stuttgart Theater Center for local officials after lighting the its tree and enjoying songs by the Singmaeuse choir.

Finally, Patch Barrack lit the biggest tree of all at the conclusion of its ceremony. Musical entertainment was provided by the Rohrer Lied Ensemble, who added their voices when the American children sang "Rudolf the Red-nosed Reindeer."

A small army of service members, Family Morale, Welfare and Recreation employees, firefighters and assorted German and American volunteers of all ages contributed to the success of the four tree lighting ceremonies.
