Defense Authorization Act signed into law

By Jim Garamone

American Forces Press Service

President Barack Obama signed the $633 billion fiscal 2013 National Defense Authorization Act into law Jan. 2.

The legislation, which cleared Congress last month, authorizes the department to act in any number of instances. "There are certain things that cannot be done without [the authorization act]," said a senior defense official speaking on background.

The act allows the department to institute pay raises, bonuses and incentive pay for personnel. "All military construction has to be authorized under this act," the official said.

It includes a 1.7 percent pay raise for military personnel, and contains $527.5 billion for the Defense Department's base budget, $88.5 billion for overseas contingency operations and $17.8 billion for national security programs in the Energy Department and Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board.

It also extends the Commanders' Emergency Response Program that has been used in Afghanistan and Iraq. It authorizes a one-year extension of the Afghan Infrastructure Fund and extends the Coalition Support Fund and the Pakistan Counterinsurgency Fund. In Iraq, the law authorizes U.S. training activities, the official said.

The law also authorizes changes needed to deter sexual assault in the military.

In addition, it establishes the Military Compensation and Retirement Modernization Commission, which will examine all aspects of military compensation. Officials stress that any possible changes to military retirement benefits that the group recommends will not affect current service members.

'Fiscal Cliff' legislation affects military, civilian paychecks

American Forces Press Service

The legislation that President Barack Obama signed Jan. 2 that postponed the fiscal cliff means changes to military and civilian paychecks, according to Defense Finance and Accounting Service officials.

The legislation increases Social Security withholding taxes to 6.2 percent.

For the past two years during the "tax holiday" the rate was 4.2 percent.

The increase in Social Security withholding taxes affects both military and civilian paychecks, officials said.

For civilian employees, officials said, this will mean a 2 percent reduction in net pay.

For military personnel, changes to net pay are affected by a variety of additional factors such as increases in basic allowances for housing, subsistence, longevity basic pay raises and promotions.

Service members could see an increase in net pay, no change or a decrease, military personnel and readiness officials said.

For military members, Social Security withholding is located on their leave and earnings statement in the blocks marked "FICA taxes" — for Federal Insurance Contributions Act.

Department of Defense civilian employees will see the change on their leave and earnings statement under "OASDI" — for old age, survivors, and disability insurance.

Reserve component members will be the first to see potential changes in their net pay as a result of the law, DFAS officials said. Changes will be reflected in their January paychecks.

Active duty military personnel will see pay adjustments in their January mid-month paychecks with the adjustments reflected on their January leave and earnings statements.

DOD civilians will see social security withholding changes reflected in paychecks based on the pay period ending Dec. 29, 2012, for pay dates beginning in January.

DFAS stresses that all personnel should review pay statements carefully.

Commander's Column

Army garrisons key to ensuring 'ready, resilient' force

Commentary by Col. John Stack
USAG Stuttgart commander

Last month, Command Sgt. Maj. Smalls and I, along with 75 other garrison commanders and command sergeants major, attended the annual Installation Management Command Garrison Commanders/Command Sergeant's Major Conference at Joint Base San Antonio.

Col. Stack

The conference was aimed at aligning IMCOM and its garrisons with the Army's Ready and Resilient campaign, which rolls out this month.

Ready and Resilient is the Army's holistic approach to total health care for its Soldiers, family members and civilians, both on and off the battlefield, with the goal of increasing readiness and resiliency within the Army family.

At IMCOM, we say we are the Army's "home," and as such, we must ensure our organizations are poised to help service members, family members and civilian employees maximize their potential and face the physical and psychological challenges associated with work and personal life.

During the conference, Army and corporate leaders gave presentations on Army energy, customer service and the Comprehensive Soldier and Family Fitness program.

Garrison leaders exchanged ideas and opinions with IMCOM headquarters teams on key policies and regulations, and programs.

During conference working groups, we engaged in candid discussions on the Sexual Harassment and Assault Response Prevention, and Army Substance Abuse Program policy requirements.

The group consensus was that we should continue to provide the service, educating our service members and leaders while taking the time to "see" ourselves and connect the dots; we must also understand the importance and impact that sponsorship has on reducing high-risk behavior.

To mitigate this behavior, we also need to take a proactive role in working with units to provide alternative activities for service members.

Also on the agenda — service member sponsorship during permanent change of station moves.

It is vital that we ensure units have sound sponsorship programs in place to make certain that all service members will be assigned trained and knowledgeable sponsors as soon as they receive PCS orders.

The sponsorship program is in keeping with the Army Family Covenant's commitment to "providing families a strong, supportive environment where they can thrive," and with that in mind, many units are moving to incorporate female-to-female sponsorship, as well as sponsorship for spouses and youths through Family Readiness Groups, Defense Department-run schools and Child, Youth and School Services.

Another important area of discussion covered career transition services.

As many are already aware, the Veterans Opportunity to Work to Hire Heroes Act of 2011 provides seamless transition for service members, expands education and training opportunities for veterans, and provides tax credits for employers who hire veterans with service-connected disabilities.

What this means for service members is that the revamped six-day transition program includes specialized training designed to better prepare service members who transition out of the military to civilian life.

Our discussion at the conference focused on the importance of job fairs and hiring events, with garrison commanders and command sergeants major on board 100 percent.

I'm excited to bring what I learned at the conference back to U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart.

Yes, there will be challenges, but I look forward to doing my part in helping shape the garrison, IMCOM and the Army to confront the challenges of the future.

Thorns and Roses

Roses to:

- The garrison fire department and military police, and especially to CX employee Robert and the kind lady parked next to us in the CX parking lot. On the first snow of November we accidentally locked our van keys inside the van, along with our two little boys. We want to thank everyone who gave us their kind support and helped us to break into the van.

- The Patch Barracks Community Mail Room for being open on Dec. 24, even after it was declared a federal holiday (and for being downright jolly to boot).

- The very nice man and his family who helped me sort through the dumpsters on Panzer Kaserne for some needed receipts mistakenly tossed out with the holiday wrapping paper. They went above and beyond that whole good samaritan concept. While I didn't find what I had lost, I was most certainly reminded of something far more important. Thank you for your kind assistance.

- The Kelley Fitness Center manager and all the gentlemen who helped me search for my prescription glasses Dec. 28. They looked through every locker in the dressing room.

Thorns to:

- And shame to whom ever took my prescription glasses from the Kelley Fitness Center locker room on Dec. 28. It's like taking someone's false teeth.

- The people who use our fitness centers and refuse to follow proper gym etiquette, like returning equipment to its proper place, changing into clean, dry shoes before entering the exercise areas, and returning towels. Where's your common sense and common courtesy?

Thorns and Roses is about recognizing those who do a good job or make life a little easier. It's also about people who need to be a little more considerate of others.

This column is not about institutions, units or agencies. It's not about situations that could result in legal action under military or German law. Nor is it a place to air management-employee problems or slander anyone. While we are happy to identify stellar service providers, we can't and won't identify under-performers by name.

Submissions must be brief and emailed to stuttgart-media@eur.army.mil with the subject line: Thorns and Roses. The author's name and valid telephone number must be included for verification. No anonymous submissions will be accepted.

Red Cross offers first-aid, CPR classes for cat, dog owners

Melissa McCaw, a veterinarian and American Red Cross pet first aid instructor, uses a stuffed animal to demonstrate the proper technique for performing CPR on a dog during a pet first aid class held at the American Red Cross Stuttgart Station last month. The next cat and dog first aid class will be held Jan. 19.

USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

Knowing how to give first aid could save the life of someone you love — even when that “someone” happens to be a furry, four-legged animal.

Last month, local pet owners learned how to manage urgent care situations involving their pets during the American Red Cross Stuttgart Station’s cat and dog first aid class.

“Our objective is to reach the community with information on how to be prepared for emergencies that involve their pets, and how to protect themselves and the animals from further harm, injury or suffering during emergencies,” said Susan Tipton, Stuttgart ARC health and safety chairman.

The class may also help pet owners reduce vet bills by teaching them how to catch problems early, and improve their pets’ quality of life.

Melissa McCaw, a doctor of veterinary medicine, taught the four-hour class, covering topics such as knowing what’s normal for a specific breed, treating injuries and illnesses, handling medical emergencies, breathing and cardiac emergencies, and building a first aid kit.

McCaw demonstrated first aid techniques using life-size stuffed animals, and engaged the students in role play while offering tips and other information that pet owners may need in an emergency.

The students practiced various techniques, from how to safely approach an injured dog to administering CPR to cleaning and bandaging a wound.

Caring for a wounded pet can be nerve wracking, but a bit of knowledge can go a long way toward healing the injury and preventing unnecessary pain and illness.

“Wounds are like icebergs ... and being prepared is better than not having an idea what you’re doing,” McCaw said.

“It’s really great to have a vet teach the program,” said Rayna Samples, who attended the class to learn how to make initial assessments and care for her dog, Sweet Pea. She said the highlight was the realism of the CPR training.

“I really liked using the stuffed dogs and having a variety of sizes of dogs to do CPR on ... you could choose the stuffed dog that was most like your own [pet]. She said she also appreciated learning how to restrain an animal with a towel.

The ARC Stuttgart Station intends to offer the pet first aid class every month this year.

The next class is scheduled for Jan. 19 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the ARC center on Panzer Kaserne. Registration is required. Participants will receive an ARC cat or dog first aid book and a DVD home reference guide.

For more information, call 431-2251/2812, civ. 07031-15-2252/2812, or visit the American Red Cross Stuttgart Station Facebook Page.

Emergency preparedness also applies to pets

Make a plan, be informed

When preparing for an emergency, be sure to include arrangements for your pets, including pet-oriented first aid and emergency supply kits.

Know in advance how you will handle your pets if you need to evacuate. Locate pet-friendly hotels or shelters in advance for use in an emergency.

If you must leave your pets behind, make sure they have access to food, water and shelter.

What’s in a pet first aid kit?

A first aid kit contains almost all of the supplies you may need for your pets, including:

- Assorted bandages, compresses, adhesive tape
- Hydrogen peroxide, rubbing alcohol, antibiotic ointment
- Tweezers, scissors, penlight, grooming clippers
- Blanket, towel, disposable gloves, medications

Emergency preparedness kit

- Pet identification
- Pet first aid kit
- Medical records, phone number of your veterinarian
- Food for a three-day evacuation, one gallon of water
- Can opener, food and water bowls
- Bedding, toys
- Leash, harness, carrier
- Cat litter/pan
- Garbage bags
- Newspapers
- Paper towels
- Bleach

Be safe: remove decals, stickers from POVs

U.S. European Command anti-terrorism officials remind U.S. personnel stationed in Europe to remove decals and stickers that may identify a privately owned vehicle as belonging to an American.

Army in Europe Regulation 190-1 (Driver and Vehicle Requirements and the Installation Traffic Code for the U.S. Forces in Germany), which applies to forces stationed in Germany, states that installation and Department of Defense decals not issued in Europe, such as installation access stickers issued at bases in the U.S., must be removed from vehicles before they are registered in Europe.

Displaying decals, stickers or banners on U.S. Army Europe-registered vehicles other than those authorized may result in cancellation of a vehicle’s registration, failure of the mechanical inspection, or both. Additionally, displaying license plates or decals in violation of AER 190-1 is a traffic violation that can result in a driver having two points assessed to his license.

The only authorized emblems eligible to display on USAREUR-registered vehicles are:

- Installation verification decals issued to employees of non-DOD agencies who work on or have routine access to U.S. military installations;
- German environmental emissions control decals;
- Handicap parking permits;
- European highway vignettes indicating that highway fees have been paid;
- Expiration decals issued with initial and renewal registrations;
- An oval international “USA” decal purchased by the owner is required if the vehicle crosses international borders using U.S. Forces “non European-style” license plates.

For more information on registration and driving requirements for U.S. forces personnel in Europe check with the U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart local vehicle registration office.

Q: During my move, the movers damaged a wall inside my apartment. They won't respond to me, and the Claims Office says it's not a legitimate claim against the U.S. Government. What can I do?

A: This is a difficult situation because your landlord will hold you responsible for the damage under the terms of your lease.

The Claims Office denied this claim against the government because it is specifically prohibited in claims regulations. Under the doctrine of sovereign immunity, you can file claims against the federal government only if it has authorized that type of claim. Congress authorized certain claims against the government in the Personnel Claims Act, which provides limited protection to Soldiers and Defense Department civilians for loss or damage to personal property that occurs incident to service or employment. The PCA provides for gratuitous payment, but does not waive sovereign immunity or make the government an insurer of personal property. Unfortunately, the PCA and its implementing regulations specifically exclude damage to real property, like the wall in your apartment.

If you've preserved enough evidence, the Legal Assistance Office can probably help you recover from the movers. Our German attorney can draft a letter to the movers demanding payment for the damage. If the movers fail to respond, he will ordinarily write a second letter, warning the company that it may lose U.S. business and be sued if it doesn't pay for the damage. If this fails, you can file an action in German court. The Legal Assistance Program, as governed by Army Regulation 27-3, does not provide in-court representation, so you will have to hire an attorney on the economy.

As with any legal case, your chance of success will depend heavily on how well you have collected and preserved important evidence. Therefore, you should immediately notify the movers and photograph the damage. The movers need your signature on their forms, so you should note the damage on any form you sign. Ideally, you will have taken pictures at move-in to prove that the damage was not there before. Finally, keep all your correspondence with the moving company and do anything else you think will help prove your case.

Make sure to file a formal complaint with the transportation office. Your feedback will help the U.S. government identify moving companies that engage in unfair business practices and ensure other service members won't have to deal with them.

Defense Authorization Act . . .

Air Force structure was of some concern to the department going into the process, but officials say they were pleased with the outcome. The Air Force also received 32 more C-130 aircraft than requested.

"But the Air Force is allowed to do everything else. They are allowed to do their divestures and moves," the official said. "The only thing kept out of service's force structure plan was we had to keep the Global Hawk Block 30 [unmanned aircraft]."

The act raises the co-pay for medications under Tricare through 2022. The legislation also limits any annual increases in pharmacy co-payments to increases in retiree cost of living adjustments.

"It is a little bit toward what we need to start paying for how much health care is costing," the official said.

The authorization also provides DOD funds for service women who need abortions in case of rape or incest. "So they don't have to take leave and come home or go out on the economy," the official said. "This is the first time this has been approved."

Among other programs, the act authorizes the defense biofuel initiative as well as counternarcotic authorities. "We use this a little bit in Afghanistan, but it's mostly in the southern border and Colombia," she said. "It has to get done."

Passage of the legislation is particularly important this year because the department is operating on a continuing resolution through March, which may be continued again through the rest of the fiscal year. The resolution maintains funding at 2012 budget levels. Without this authority, "Things really do shut down," the official said.

"It actually is things that keep the war going and things that ... keep the economy going because it is pay, recruiting, military construction," the official said.

Army News Service

Army Emergency Relief scholarships for the academic year 2013-2014 are now available for spouses and children of Soldiers, retired Soldiers and reserve-component Soldiers on Title 10 orders. The application deadline is May 1.

The Maj. Gen. James Ursano Scholarships are for unmarried children under the age of 23.

"Scholarship awards for children are based on financial need, grade point average and leadership and activity roles — like sports, Scouting and student council — over the last four years," said Tammy LaCroix, AER Scholarship Program manager. "A student could qualify under one, two or all three of the criteria."

The Spouse Education Assistance Program Scholarships are based on financial need, LaCroix said.

Applicants of both scholarships must be pursuing their first undergraduate degrees at accredited colleges or universities. All applicants must maintain a grade point average of 2.0 on a GPA scale of 4.0.

Scholarship funds can be used for tuition, fees, books, supplies and room and board.

All applications must be submitted online.

According to LaCroix, 2,614 Maj. Gen. James Ursano scholarships for the 2012-2013 academic year were awarded, with an average award of $2,550, as well as 757 Spouse Education Assistance Program scholarships. The average award for these was $3,205.

Forms and instructions for both scholarships can be found at www.aerhq.org/dnn563/EducationalAssistance.aspx.

Feeding birds the right way

Usually bird-feeding stations are wooden boards, tables or small birdhouses. Sometimes people simply place birdseed on a window sill. For birds, this can be dangerous, since they can catch many diseases from other birds' droppings.

A better option is to hang cylindrical bird feeders or balls containing vegetable fat, seeds and unsalted nuts in nearby bushes or trees out of reach of cats.

It's a great way to view birds up close and will allow you to count the different species coming to your house.

Healthy dieting: deciphering fact from fad

By Amy Cowell

U.S. Army Public Health Command

It's the start of a new year and you are determined to make this the year that you stick to your resolution to lose those extra pounds. But with so much information out there, where should you start?

If one does a quick Google search for "weight loss," more than 500,000 results appear, headlined with advertisements for the latest and greatest diets, all claiming to have the new secret to weight loss.

So which do you choose? The Atkins, Baby Food, Cabbage Soup, Caveman and Grapefruit diets promise quick and easy results — not to mention the abundance of weight loss pills, equipment and centers that claim to deliver the body of your dreams (for a small fee).

Would you believe that the best thing you could do to achieve your goals is to avoid all of these fads?

"Don't be fooled into thinking it is because of some magical food, pill or potion. Crazy, unbalanced diets cause weight loss because they are basically low-calorie diets," said Dawn Jackson-Blatner, a spokesperson for the American Dietetic Association.

These diets limit your nutritional

When it comes to weight loss, there's no lack of fad diets promising fast results. But such diets limit nutritional intake, can be unhealthy and tend to fail in the long run.

intake, can be unhealthy, and tend to fail in the long run. Follow the ADA's advice and stay away from any diet, pills or products that claim:

Rapid Weight Loss. Slow, steady weight loss is more likely to last than dramatic weight changes. Healthy plans aim for a loss of no more than one-half pound to one pound per week. If you lose weight quickly, you'll lose muscle, bone and water. You also will be more likely to regain the pounds quickly afterwards.

Quantities and Limitations. Ditch

diets that allow unlimited quantities of any food, such as grapefruit and cabbage soup. It's boring to eat the same thing over and over, and hard to stick with monotonous plans. Avoid any diet that eliminates or severely restricts entire food groups, such as carbohydrates. Even if you take a multivitamin, you'll still miss some critical nutrients.

Specific Food Combinations. There is no evidence that combining certain foods or eating foods at specific times of day will help with weight loss.

Eating the "wrong" combinations of food doesn't cause them to turn to fat immediately or to produce toxins in your intestines, as some plans claim.

Rigid Menus. Life is already complicated enough. Limiting food choices or following rigid meal plans can be an overwhelming, distasteful task. With any new diet, always ask yourself: "Can I eat this way for the rest of my life?" If the answer is no, the plan is not for you.

No Need to Exercise. Regular physical activity is essential for good health and healthy weight management. The key to success is to find physical activities that you enjoy and then aim for 30 to 60 minutes of activity on most days of the week.

Here's the bottom line: If a diet or product sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

The key to achieving and maintaining a healthy weight isn't about short-term dietary changes. If you want to maintain a healthy weight, build muscle and lose fat, the best path is a lifelong combination of eating smarter and moving more.

For more information on ways to make realistic lifestyle changes, visit the American Dietetic Association's website at www.eatright.org.

Ms. Mary Lee Kilcollins read to each of the kindergarten classes during the last week before the holiday break. Mrs. Kilcollins is the mother of the BEMS school nurse, Bonnie Kerr. In addition to reading a story, she gave the children a kazoo to use during a "hum-along" and helped with a small craft projects.

There are three levels of academic awards presented to students in Grades 4 to 8, based on grade point average: Principal's Honor Roll; High Honor Roll; and Honor Roll. High achievement comes from hard work and lots of dedication and the students are very proud of their recognition. Joy is going where the mood takes you. Acting, then thinking. Joy has found its soul mate in the BMW X1. Inspiring rendezvous: Antique treasures and contemporary art at the "Antiques & Art" in the Messe Sindelfingen

The collector's eyes will illuminate: On the 11th of January 2013, the "Antiques & Art" in the Messe Sindelfingen opens its gates. A rich array of venerable treasures awaits on the ground floor of the large Messe hall for the visitor. Furniture out of Napoleon times, copper stings out of the 17th century, art nouveau jewelry with elegantly swung forms, noble second-hand art... you will appreciate the aesthetics and noble style consciousness of what you see at the fair, that will ensure that you will find what you are looking for at the fair. In the upper floor, contemporary artists and the gallery present their works: Figurative and abstract painting, photo art, sculptures, collages, picture installations as well as many other forms are represented here for the visitor with international variety. The inspiring art works together to bring the past and present art together. Messe Sindelfingen ideally displays to the eye that the architecture of the Messe is a special feature of the "Antiques & Art", which is one of the most important Messe's of the industry in Germany. A cultural highpoint becomes the "Art Trilogy" in which the Messe team invites its visitors and vendors in the evening of 12 January, in the Oldtimer bus, the participants are chauffeured stylishly to the "Schauwerk Sindelfingen", and after that to the "Gallery of the City Sindelfingen" and in the end into the neighboring town to the "Municipal Gallery Böblingen. Detailed information in reference to the Fair Sindelfingen can be viewed under "Antik & Kunst" at www.messe-sindelfingen.de.
