It's time to think about winter tires

U.S. Army Europe Public Affairs Office

German federal law mandates the use of winter tires under adverse road conditions, whether icy, snow covered, or snow slush/mud. While there is no specific time period during which winter tires are required, many German drivers use the rule of thumb "von O bis O" — from O to O — meaning snow tires should be put on in October and remain on until Ostern (Easter).

European winter tires have two kinds of markings: a snowflake for snow tires or "M+S" for tires designed to work in "matsch und schnee" — mud and snow. All-season or all-weather tires are also allowed but must have the M+S marking to be acceptable for winter driving. The laws also apply to motorbikes, trucks and buses, regardless of whether the driver is the owner or is renting the vehicle. Winter tires are required by law in several other European nations.

Only snow tires without spikes or stud are allowed in Germany. Tires designed for snow function better than multi-purpose tires. All tires should have at least 1.6 millimeters of tread depth, but for maximum safety, tires with less than 4 millimeters should be replaced.

A one euro coin can be used for a quick "tread check." When placed in the tire's tread, you should not be able to see the golden edge of the coin. If you can, the tire needs to be replaced. Winter tires offer better protection than all-season models, and it's best if all four tires match. The German automobile club ADAC recommends using tires that carry the "three peak mountain" seal, the mark of snow tires that meet the highest standards.

If you get caught driving without the correct tires on your vehicle, you can get a €40 ticket. Causing an accident or creating a road hazard or traffic jam as a result of not having the correct tires can cost €80 and a point against your license. Police can assign blame to a motorist involved in a winter accident whose car does not have snow tires installed, regardless of who caused the accident. In addition, some insurance companies may deny coverage to motorists driving with summer tires on winter roads.

Tips to keep you safe while driving in fog

By USAG Stuttgart Safety Office

The weather in central Europe may be foggy any time of the year, but most commonly in fall and winter months. Fog and the lack of speed limits on autobahns greatly increase chances for accidents.

*IAW AE Pam 190-34/USAFAE Pam 31-206 16 Nov 10; Follow these simple safety tips for avoiding dangers on the road:

- In thick fog, drivers should pull off to the right side of the road or increase the distance between vehicles while using low-beam headlights.

- Signs are normally posted in areas where patches of ground fog are common. Drivers should slow their speed considerably in these areas.
- Drive with low beams, since high beams reflect back off the fog and actually impair visibility even more. Also use fog lights if visibility is reduced so you can be seen. Just remember, it's an offense to use high-intensity rear fog lights if visibility is greater than 50 meters.
- Don't follow tail lights. Use the right edge of the road or painted road markings as a guide and enlarge the safety distance to the vehicle ahead. Quick braking and accelerating should be avoided.

- Listen for traffic you cannot see. Turn off the radio and open the window a little.

— Drivers who drive across unexpected icy patches should make no sudden change in direction, speed, or braking. The power of the vehicle's engine, rather than the foot brake, should be used to slow the vehicle on icy or snow-packed roads. On downhill, slippery grades, drivers should use a low gear and avoid accelerating or braking.

Driving in fog is stressful and exhausting. Drivers should take regular breaks at rest areas. (Don't turn off your lights in rest areas so other drivers can see your parked vehicle. Reduced visibility below 50 meters results in a mandatory speed limit of 50 km/h. Above chart reflects recommended maximum speeds during periods of reduced visibility. Reflective poles along the roadside are 50 meters apart; a great tool to estimate visibility and following distance. — Illustration by Kevin S. Abel, USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

State Department offers tips for fun, safe Oktoberfest

What to do if ...

You lose your passport:

Apply for a replacement at the Consulate. Bring at least $135 (or Euro equivalent), a passport photo, and whatever picture ID you have.

You lose your money:

Contact family/friends and ask them to send money via Western Union. Transfers can be made 24/7 online at www.westernunion.com.

Pick up money either at a Reisebank (located at major train stations or airports) or at the German post office.

You lose your credit card:

Call your credit card company to report it lost or stolen. The numbers are below.

Visa: 0800-811-8440

Mastercard: 0800-819-1040

(USA)

Oktoberfest 2016 takes place Sept. 17 through Oct. 3 in Munich, Germany. Attendees are encouraged to maintain vigilance throughout their visit. — Photo by FooToo / Shutterstock.com

By U.S. Army

The U.S. Department of State offers the following advice for visitors to Oktoberfest.

Keep passports in a safe place. Make a good, clear copy to bring to the festival. This makes it less likely that the actual passport will be lost or stolen.

While at Oktoberfest, keep passport copy, cell phone, money and hotel address on your person, and preferably in a secure pouch or pocket.

Taking beer mugs from the Oktoberfest tents is considered a criminal offense. Purchase official mugs, that are approved to leave the grounds, from vendors. Police can tell the difference.

Don't forget that Bavarian beer is stronger than American beer. Drinking a "Maß" (one liter of beer) has the same alcohol content as a six-pack of American beer.

Note: Bavarian authorities have a zero tolerance policy on illegal drugs.

Oktoberfest emergencies

Police and Red Cross are both located at the Servicezentrum (behind the Schottenhamel tent).

Lost & Found is located at the Service Center basement; the entrance is in the Festleitung. It is open daily from Sept. 17 to Oct. 3, 1-11 p.m. They cannot be contacted by telephone, only in person or by email at Fundbuero. kvr@muenchen.de. Anything lost in beer tents (wallets, passports, keys, cellphones, purses) will be turned in to that office, but expect a delay between loss and items showing up for claim.

Security Point

Anyone who feels threatened or harassed or needs information, help or advice should visit the Sichere Wiesn security point located below the Bavaria statue in the Service Center. It is open daily from 6 p.m. to 1 a.m., and every Saturday from 3 p.m.-1 a.m. Call at 89-502-22366.

Tips for a fun visit

Wearing Tracht (traditional Bavarian dress) at Oktoberfest is encouraged, and fun, but not required.

Note: Many Dirndl's have a hidden pocket, a great place to keep money, identification and emergency contact information.

Munich may be one of the safest cities in the world, but where there are crowds, there are pickpockets, and Oktoberfest brings out the pros. Keep a close eye on personal belongings, especially on mass transit.

Do not bring luggage, packs or large purses to Oktoberfest. They won't be allowed inside the grounds due to security precautions. The rules are similar to U.S. professional sports stadium security rules. Expect to be searched at the outer perimeter.

Know how to get back to your lodging. Public transportation runs all night, but it won't be useful if you don't know which U-Bahn or S-Bahn stop to use, or the name or address of your hotel. Keep that information on your person.

There are emergency phones located on the light poles of the Oktoberfest grounds. Pick one up; there will be a police officer on the other end.

In beer tents, guests are allowed to stand on benches and sing. Join in the singing! However, dancing on the tables is not allowed.

Do not smoke inside tents. Each tent has an outside smoking area for smokers.

Avoid disputes with other Oktoberfest attendees. Guests who get into fights will be arrested. Hitting someone with a beer mug is an "assault with a deadly weapon," and usually results in prison time.

Do not sleep in the park outside the Oktoberfest grounds. Thieves and pickpockets are always on the lookout for vulnerable Bierleichen (beer corpses).

Police may ask for ID at any time. Some police are not dressed in uniform, but in plain clothes. Make sure to always have a copy of passport. Patrons may also ask to see police IDs, which are laminated cards, not badges.

When talking to the police, patrons are always allowed to request an English-speaking police officer. However, expect to be escorted to where that English-speaking police officer is located, usually the police station.

US Army Health Clinic Stuttgart welcomes new commander

By Michael Beaton

Bavaria Medical Command Public Affairs

Colonel David Richardson, Commander of the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity Bavaria returned to Stuttgart to preside over the Stuttgart Health Clinic Change of Command ceremony today, Monday, 9 Sept. on the Patch Barracks parade field.

During the ceremony Col. Richardson received the colors from Lt. Col. Patrick Contino acting clinic commander, and passing them to incoming commander Lt. Col. Theodore Brown, signifying the responsibility he accepts as the new Commander U.S. Army Health Clinic Stuttgart.

Afterwards, speaking from the lectern to the more than 100 clinic and MEDDAC Bavaria personnel in attendance as well as Brig. Gen. Dennis Le Master, Commanding General, U.S. Army Regional Health Command Europe and Command Surgeon, U.S. Army Europe (RHC-E), Richardson lauded Contino's many accomplishments he and his command team achieved and welcomed Brown to his new command in Stuttgart.

"The Stuttgart Health Clinic is one of MEDDAC Bavaria's largest in terms of enrolled patients and staff — and the amount and quality of work the clinic does is truly outstanding. The accomplishments this clinic has achieved under the short tenure of acting director Lt. Col. Contino are impressive and he has led a stellar team through the interim period of the last three months, a chaotic time when it seems everything is in flux because so many people are underway, not only our patients but our staff." said Richardson.

"Newcomers, for many of them the first time outside the United States, turn to our organization for support, for continuity and for familiarity. When people talk about 'The Big Army Family' MEDDAC staff and facilities are quite often the first things they think of." Richardson said.

In his first remarks as the new clinic commander Lt. Col. Brown expressed his enthusiasm to begin work in support of the Stuttgart community. He mentioned how impressed he was with the clinic team, their commitment to patient satisfaction and professionalism. "My family and I have seldom been given such a heartfelt welcome; I'm honored to be here today and to serve with you."

About the Stuttgart Health Clinic

The Stuttgart Health Clinic is located on Patch Barracks and provides quality ambulatory care for more than 10,000 Soldiers and their families, while coordinating and facilitating inpatient and specialty care with nearby German host nation medical facilities and DoD partners.

Stuttgart is one of the largest enduring military communities in Europe and is home to United States Africa Command (AFRICOM), the United States European Command (EUCOM), Marine Corps Forces Europe (MARFOREUR) as well as Soldiers stationed there in support of the United States Army, Europe (USAREUR).

MEDDAC Bavaria Survey: Help improve Health Clinic services

By Bavaria Medical Command Public Affairs

Is there a service you frequently use or would like to have available from the Health Clinic in Stuttgart? Take this patient survey at <http://bit.ly/MEDDACBAVARIA> to let them know how to improve the medical care you receive.

This survey is part of a continuing effort to improve medical services provided to service members and their families in Stuttgart.

Completing the 2016 survey is your opportunity to provide the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity Bavaria (MEDDAC Bavaria) Command and clinic staffs with anonymous feedback which is taken very seriously at all levels.

The survey takes less than five minutes to complete, is confidential, and is one of the key tools we use to identify not only where we can improve our patient care, facilities and procedures, but also to identify and recognize the things we are doing right.

Questions focus on specific issues ranging from how the hospital staff cared for you and your family during a clinic visit, access to care, procedures for making appointments, hours of operation, facility cleanliness, and the courtesy of our personnel.

The responses that you give our MEDDAC Bavaria Health Clinics in Ansbach, Grafenwoehr, Hohenfels, Stuttgart and Vilseck the feedback they need and directly effect as well as ensure you and your family receives the best possible care at our facilities.

USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

U.S. Army Garrison Stuttgart held its Organization Day Sept. 2 on the parade field on Panzer Kaserne in Böblingen. The garrison workforce enjoyed a full day of activities such as team-building games, contests and entertainment.

“This is a day for us to get together... power down, spend a little time to relax, chat with each other, and enjoy each other’s company,” said Col. Glenn K. Dickenson, garrison commander.

Dickenson took a moment to thank garrison employees for their dedicated work across all services within USAG Stuttgart.

“I wanted you to know that all the hard work that you do is appreciated throughout this community. This community here is extremely complex, from units on the installation, some that have rapid deployment missions, it spans the gamut of things that we do on a daily basis. It is all of your support, and understanding their missions that really makes a big difference,” Dickenson said.

The day commenced with team games ranging from bubble soccer and volleyball, to a water balloon toss and three-legged races, ending with the annual tug-o-war between garrison directories. The workforce really did prove their strength, literally breaking the rope to end the game.

The dunk tank was a big hit this year as well. Garrison employees and family members took a shot at sinking members of the command team, garrison directors, as well as members of Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

With the help of the Defense Commissary Agency Europe, Army & Air Force Exchange Service, Culligan, Red Cross, and the United Service Organizations Stuttgart volunteer team of grill masters, hotdogs and hamburgers were offered at lunchtime. The chili cook-off and desert contests also made for a truly enjoyable outing, while DJ Ripper kept the party alive with popular music throughout the day.

Stuttgart’s Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation Directorate took home the trophy with the overall win for the day.

Bridget Jones's Baby – Oscar® winners Renée Zellweger and Colin Firth reprise their roles in the next chapter of the world's favorite singleton in Bridget Jones's Baby. Directed by Sharon Maguire (Bridget Jones's Diary), the new film in the beloved comedy series based on creator Helen Fielding's heroine finds Bridget unexpectedly expecting. Patrick Dempsey joins the cast for the third installment, and longtime collaborators Tim Bevan and Eric Fellner of Working Title Films produce alongside Debra Hayward. Universal Pictures will distribute Bridget Jones's Baby in North America and select international territories.

Tanzanian rangers showcase anti-poaching skills

Story by Staff Sgt. Eric Summers
Combined Joint Task Force – Horn of Africa

Tanzania Rangers held a demonstration day to show off their newly acquired skills after training with soldiers from the U.S. Army North Carolina National Guard and 403rd Civil Affairs Battalion August 24, 2016, at Rungwa Game Reserve, Tanzania.

The demonstration was held to illustrate the skills park and game reserve rangers have acquired during two-months of training with the soldiers, in an effort to reduce the amount of animals poached throughout the country.

"We are here in Rungwa Game Reserve purposely because of the training by [the] U.S. embassy and American Army," said Moses Munya, the reserve's senior warden. "This training was based in field crafts, exercises and field techniques. Medication, for example: we learned how to treat a casualty that may have been injured by a buffalo or poacher."

Medical training was just one of several skills that the rangers showcased during the demonstration. They also exhibited techniques in small unit tactics, intelligence gathering and observation, and apprehension of suspected poachers.

"We are [here] to build host nation capacities to train the Rungwa Game Reserve rangers in order to build their capability to patrol and protect the reserve," said Sgt. Patrick Dahm, 403rd CA BN team member. "I think the rangers were ready and eager to learn and they are excited to put the things that they learned into practice."

The training and demonstration was initiated by the U.S. Embassy in Tanzania as part of a plan to stop the rapid decline of elephants hunted in the park and game reserves by poachers. Poachers are not only decimating the numbers of elephants and threatening their future survival, but according to the Center for Strategic and International Studies, ivory is often poached by violent extremist organizations, who barter it for weapons and ammunition.

"The Tanzania Rangers and U.S. Army have gotten together to do this training and to keep these stations operating, and that's how big this problem is," said Mark Childress, U.S. Ambassador to Tanzania. "It requires a coalition of partners, and that's what you see here."

The elephant population has declined to less than 44,000, nearly half the number from 10 years ago. While the poachers' targets are typically the elephant, rangers who try to stop them sometimes end up in the poachers' crosshairs.

"We really need to make sure that we provide quality training so you can deal with the poachers who are also learning [new techniques]," said Tanzania Maj. Gen. Gaudence Milanzi, Ministry of Natural Resources and Tourism permanent secretary. "The days are gone when you would meet a poacher and the moment he sees you and he starts running," Milanzi added. "[These types] of poachers will definitely want to test you, that's why I say that this training is very important and that we would really want to extend our appreciation."

Hilda Adam, Rungwa Game Reserve game warden three, said that while the course was difficult, they did their best and made it through.

"[The training] increased my confidence because I learned the difficult skills like intelligence gathering, first aid and terrain models," Adam said. "I am proud to be an anti-poacher because I can conserve natural resources for the present and future generations."

Munya agreed that the training boasted his confidence and that he would like for the training to continue.

The current plan is for the training to take place over three years in Tanzania.

"I think some of the goals are to continue to have units cycle through the game reserve and continue to train the rangers," Dahm said. "I think that some of the expectations are that we continue to see the same rangers attending these training[s] and building on the things they learned."

After the demonstration, the rangers were thanked for their service and dedication to the training, but Hilda says she does it for one reason.

"I love the wildlife conservation and the natural resources," she said. "I love it, so I am here to protect and combat against poachers. That's why I am here."

Bulgaria, US commence joint air policing

Story by Staff Sgt. Joe McFadden
52nd Fighter Wing Public Affairs

The United States and Bulgarian air forces will conduct the first ever joint NATO air policing mission in Bulgaria, Sept. 9-16.

The air policing mission enables on-demand response capabilities, which serve to mitigate and deter violations and infringements on Bulgarian sovereign airspace.

Working alongside the Bulgarian air force are four F-15C Eagle fighter aircraft from the California and Massachusetts Air National Guards, along with approximately 75 Airmen from the 194th Expeditionary Fighter Squadron.

"It's quite an honor to be the first-ever U.S. or NATO participant here in Bulgaria for this mission," said Calif. ANG Lt. Col. Matthew Ohman, a 194th EFS F-15C pilot. "It's awesome just to be able to work with the people here who have gone out of their way to really facilitate our being here."

The Bulgarian Parliament approved joint national air policing in February 2016. The U.S. Air Force has regularly supported NATO allies to defend their airspace in line with security commitments to NATO. The 194th EFS previously conducted joint air policing in Iceland in March 2016, which marked the first of its kind under the concurrent Operation Atlantic Resolve mission.

The 194th EFS aircraft forward deployed to Graf Ignatievo from Campia Turzii, Romania, where the squadron serves as a theater security package deployment to Europe as a part of OAR.

The squadron represents a total force endeavor, comprised of ANG and Reserve Airmen from the 144th Fighter Wing at Fresno ANG Base, California, and the 104th Fighter Wing at Barnes ANG Base, Massachusetts, alongside active-duty Airmen in support roles from the 52nd Fighter Wing at Spangdahlem Air Base, Germany.

"This is something that we do naturally back in Fresno at the 144th [Fighter Wing]," said Calif. ANG Lt. Col. Cesar Gonzalez, 194th EFS aircraft maintenance commander. "Our Guardsmen protect, and we're on alert protecting the home front and the western front. What a great opportunity to do the same for the Eastern Bloc of Europe."

Gonzalez also said both the joint air policing and the theater security package deployment will also allow 194th EFS to remain current on their training with their active-duty counterparts while assisting a NATO ally police the integrity of its borders.

"It's important that we are standing side-by-side with our NATO allies," he said. "We are committed to the security of Europe and helping Bulgaria and countries who ask for our help."

The 194th EFS has carried out bilateral flight operations to bolster interoperability among NATO allies and partner nations like the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, Estonia, Romania, Bulgaria and Iceland since their deployment began in March 2016.

Patch Elementary School kindergartners experience bus adventure

Soon-to-be kindergartners line up at Patch Elementary School, with their parents in a separate line, to experience what a day at the new school will be like from the bus ride to the classroom, Sept. 2, 2016. — Photo by Wayne "Joe" Holder

The start of kindergarten is a very stressful time for both students and parents. Their little ones are on a new path of learning for the next 12 years. When you add that every student at Patch Elementary School is either bused or driven because of the new school construction, anxiety for everyone is magnified.

Beverly Erdmann, principal of Patch Elementary School, approved Assistant Principal Sheree Foster's idea to reduce this stress and anxiety for both parents and students. On Sept. 2, three buses arrived on Patch Barracks to pick up the soon-to-be kindergartners and their parents for an adventure to Patch Elementary School.

In true Stuttgart fashion, the buses left Patch Barracks and were stuck in a Stau, arriving 20 minutes late. School aides were waiting in front of the school to show the children how to line up when arriving, and escort them to the playground to each teacher's designated area. The kindergarten teachers took the children to their classrooms just like any normal school day.

Teachers, students, and parents experienced a typical day in kindergarten. At the regular lunch hour, teachers escorted their cherubs to the cafeteria with parents in tow. Once assembled, Chris Ferguson from the Department of Defense Education Activity (DoDEA) bus office in Stuttgart, talked to the parents about bus safety, procedures, and answered any questions they raised. He also gave each child a pencil and a bus safety coloring book.

At the completion of the questions and answer time, the kindergarten teachers took their classes to the buses for the ride back to Patch Barracks. Parents had to sit in the back so the kindergartners can experience how they would travel on the ride home.

Erdmann stated that the event was a huge success, and the school will continue to do it each year if funds are available. One parent was overheard saying that they feel better about the bus ride to the school; however, "it's their baby!"

To further help parents adjust to the idea of sending their children off to school, Patch Elementary School administrators hosted a "Boo-Hoo Kaffee & Kuchen" breakfast for those parents that needed some extra time for assurance and comfort from fellow parents and administrators to release their babies on a new career in learning.

Patch Middle School students and faculty members gathered around the flag to honor and remember those who were casualties of the September 11th attacks with a period of silence and with the flag raised to half-mast. The Patch Middle School Choir sang our National Anthem. Panzer Exchange program rewards academic excellence during school year

By Army & Air Force Exchange Service
Public Affairs

Military students can turn good grades into rewards—and a chance at a $2,000 gift card—with the Army & Air Force Exchange Service's You Made the Grade program.

Through the program, first-through 12th-graders who maintain a B average or better are eligible to receive a coupon booklet filled with free offers and discounts from the Panzer Exchange.

"For 16 years, the Exchange has been honored to reward military students who make it their mission to succeed in the classroom through the You Made the Grade program" said Panzer Exchange Store Manager Sam Shinault.

"Soldiers' children face unique challenges, including making multiple moves during their academic careers," Shinault said, noting Department of Defense Education Activity reports that most military children move six to nine times before finishing high school. "These students deserve to be recognized for their achievements, and the Panzer Exchange is happy to thank them for a job well done."

The You Made the Grade coupon booklet, which features new coupons for the 2016-17 school year, includes offers for free food and beverages at the Exchange food courts.

The program helps students head to class in style with coupons for a free haircut, 10 percent off footwear and $5 off Under Armour apparel. All offers are valid through July 31, 2017.

The booklet also includes an entry form for the You Made the Grade semiannual sweepstakes. Scholars can enter to win Exchange gift cards worth $2,000, $1,500 or $500. Entries can be submitted once per grading period, with drawings typically held in June and December. The most recent sweepstakes winners were students who shopped at Exchanges at Joint Base San Antonio-Randolph, Texas; U.S. Military Academy, N.Y.; and Selfridge Air National Guard Base, Mich.

Students, including those who are home schooled, can receive a You Made the Grade coupon booklet by presenting a valid military I.D. and proof of an overall B average at the Panzer Exchange customer service counter. Eligible students can pick up one booklet for each qualifying report card.

Students and guardians can visit the Panzer Exchange for more information about the You Made the Grade program.

Tradition starts Viehscheid /

Story and photos by Kevin S. Abel
USAG Stuttgart Public Affairs Office

What better way to celebrate the end of summer of wandering and foraging in the Allgäu Region of Southern Germany than with festivals including 30,000 of your fellow mountain travelers.

Having spent summer in the mountains grazing in the Alpine meadows, cattle are brought back down into the valleys in September before winter sets in, this is known as the Viehscheid or Almabtrieb.

Bells sounds can be heard throughout the valleys to the delight of all locals and guests as herders and cattle make their way down.

During the Viehscheid around 30,000 head of cattle leave the lush mountain pastures of the Allgäu

Region and are herded into the valley to the Scheidplatz and sorted before being returned to their owners.

It all starts in the spring when herdsmen promise owners of cattle herds they will return all of their animals to them in good health in the fall.

These herders take on a great amount of responsibility and drive the cattle up into the mountains shortly after the snowmelt to fatten them up throughout the 100 days of summer.

The time spent up in the mountains is not always easy for the herders. They often live in very simple conditions and lead extremely lonely lives.

If all has gone well, the leading cow is elaborately decorated. While all of the cattle are decorated with an elaborate bells and collars, only the leading cow, or 'Kranz', or 'Kranzkuh' in Bavaria, is decorated with a wreath.

The wreath is fashioned from pine boughs, alpine flowers, bearing a cross and a mirror. All the other cows wear huge bells to ward off any evil demons the cattle might encounter on their way back down into the valley. This is the traditional way of giving thanks for a good grazing season without losses.

The Allgäu is a region in Swabia in southern Germany. It covers the south of Bavarian Swabia, southeastern Baden-Württemberg and parts of Austria. The region stretches from the pre-alpine lands up to the Alps.

In recent years, the Viehscheid has become increasingly popular and vary in the number of cattle and tourists. The average size of the gathering is approximately 100-300 head of cattle per event.

It is advisable to get to the Viehscheid early to get a good view. However, depending on the weather, an Viehscheid may also be delayed.

A HOME AWAY FROM HOME

ICF (International Christian Fellowship) is a modern, non-denominational church comprised of an eclectic, multicultural and international community in Stuttgart. As a group of imperfect people seeking Jesus, we offer meaningful Christian fellowship inside and outside the church with regular events and small groups throughout the year. Come visit our English-speaking service on Sunday at 16.00 at Metzstrasse 1, 70190 Stuttgart | www.icf-stuttgart.de

We're looking forward to seeing you!

The Landesmuseum Stuttgart is proud to present their newest exhibition of historic gems from Greece, renaissance paintings from local castles and Celtic discoveries dating back to 700 BC. Admission costs €5.50 per adult. For more information go to www.stuttgart.de

Duck race

Sat, Oct 1

Tübingen, Neckar

What greater way is there to spend October 1 than cheer for thousands of bright yellow rubber ducks as they race past on the Neckar River? The first 300 to make it past the finish line earn cool prizes for their adoptive parents. Ducks cost €3 and can be bought in the two weeks leading up to the event. Admission is free. For more information go to www.tuebinger-entenrennen.de

Artful lunch

Thu, Sep 22

Stuttgart, Kunstmuseum

Do you ever wonder how to make the best of your lunch break at work? Take a 30-minute short tour of the art museum Stuttgart and clear your head while learning about artists from many different eras. Admission costs €3 or €6 including a snack. For more information go to www.stuttgart-tourist.de

Pumpkin soup record

Sat, Sep 24

Ludwigsburg, Blühendes Barock

While we have no doubt that your grandma's pumpkin soup recipe is the best you've ever tasted, we are sad to inform you that it is in fact not Germany's biggest bowl of pumpkin soup because that will be served at the Blühendes Barock in Ludwigsburg on September 24 and 25 from 11 a.m. Admission costs €8.50 per adult. For more information go to www.ludwigsburg.de

Bonsai day

Sat, Sep 24

Ludwigsburg, Blühendes Barock

Whether you have questions regarding the care of your Bonsai tree at home or simply wish to find out more about these interestingly tiny masterpieces. The Bonsai-Beratungs-Tag at Blühendes Barock on September 24 is the event to be. Admission costs €8.50 per adult. For more information go to www.ludwigsburg.de

Pumpkin weigh-in

Sun, Oct 2

Ludwigsburg, Blühendes Barock

Is there a greater pastime than watching people weigh gigantic pumpkins? Decide for yourself as you get your annual fix of enormous orange plants at Blühendes Barock in Ludwigsburg on October 2 from 1 p.m. Admission costs €8.50 per adult. For more information go to www.ludwigsburg.de

Guided vineyard hike

Mon, Oct 3

Esslingen, Kelter Mettingen
